How to Write a Sponsorship Application... The Internal Revenue Service Form 8863 is used to calculate and claim education credits. Form 8863 was used to calculate the American Opportunity Credit and the Lifetime Learning Credit. The American Opportunity Credit is worth up to $2,500 and the Lifetime Learning Credit is worth up to $2,000. Use Form 8863 to find out how much you qualify for. Tips Part 3 on Form 8863 must be completed by all individuals seeking to claim either the Lifetime Learning Credit or the American Opportunity Credit. Part 2 and Part 3 of Form 8863 relate specifically to the individual credits you are claiming. Ascertain that you are eligible to file for the credit. Your expenses must be from a post-secondary school that participates in federal student aid programs. If you are a full-time student, you might be able to claim the credit as long as no one else claims you as a dependent and you paid half of your own support with earned income. Parents might be able to claim the credit for their child as long as they claim the child as a dependent. Parents can claim one of the credits for every eligible dependent child. Complete part 3 on Form 8863, page 2, for each person claimed. Enter the student's personal information -- name and Social Security number -- on lines 20 and 21. Line 22 asks for information about the eligible post-secondary school. Use Form 1096-T to fill in this section. Answer questions 23 to 26. Fill out the credit section for the one you want to claim. Fill out lines 27 through 30 for the American Opportunity Credit or line 31 for the Lifetime Learning Credit. Use the Adjusted Qualified Education Expenses Worksheet to calculate the amount for line 27, reducing education expenses by any tax-free scholarships and grants. Complete part 1 only if you are claiming the American Opportunity Credit. Enter the number from part 3, line 30, on part 1, line 1. When claiming the credit for more than one student, enter the total amount from line 30 for all students on line 1. Enter your modified adjusted gross income from your income tax form 1040 or 1040A on line 2. Enter the requested amounts in lines 3-7. Do not check the box on line 7; doing so makes you ineligible for the credit. Multiply the amount on line 7 by 40 percent to get the amount of the refundable credit -- the amount you can get even if you do not owe any income tax. Complete part 2 to calculate the amount of the non-refundable American Opportunity Credit or the non-refundable Lifetime Learning Credit. If claiming the American Opportunity Credit, subtract line 8 from line 7 and enter this amount on line 9. Enter the number from part 3, line 31, on part 2, line 10. When claiming the credit for more than one student, enter the total amount from line 31 for all students on line 10. Enter the requested amount for lines 11 to 18, referring to tax form 1040 or 1040A for line 14. Complete the Credit Limit Worksheet using the amount from line 18, on line 1 of the worksheet. The amount you get on line 13 of the worksheet goes on Form 8863 line 19 and is the amount of nonrefundable credit you will receive -- the amount that will reduce the taxes you owe. To learn more about how these credits coordinate with the Pell Grant, see Internal Revenue Service Publication 970, page 13. You may be able to reduce your tax liability by claiming the otherwise tax-free grant as income, if the money was used to pay for something like room and board, that is not a qualified education expense. Feeling helpless in the face of the coronavirus? Here's a small, important step you can take: Fill out your census form online. Visit 2020census.gov to complete your online census, which will probably take less than 10 minutes (mine took, like, three minutes) and will make you feel like you've done something productive. If you need a quick refresher on what a census is and why we have it, here's a 30-second video from the U.S. Census Bureau. Essentially, every 10 years we try to count everybody and collect information on our nation's demographics—and then the government uses that information to determine where and how to fund schools, fire stations, transportation grants, and so on. Census data also helps determine how many congressional seats each state receives, which is kind of a big deal. I'm not saying that if you don't take five minutes to fill out your online census, your state won't get the representatives it needs and your local school won't get the funding it needs, but... you know what, just fill out your online census. If you're trying to avoid screen time to set a good example for your kids, you can even complete your census over the phone! Do you care about the 2020 census? You should. We all probably should care more about the 2020... Read more if you want to see the questions you'll have to answer before you begin your census, the Census Bureau has them ready for you to peruse. It's important to note that there is no citizenship question on the 2020 census; at one point our government considered asking everyone their citizenship status as part of the census process, but that is off the table for 2020. This means that if you live in the United States or any of its five territories, you can and should fill out a 2020 census regardless of your citizenship status. In fact, filling out your census is required by law—and the law also requires the Census Bureau to keep your information confidential. Today, the Supreme Court blocked a crucial citizenship question from being added to the 2020 U.S.... Read more Which brings me to the last good reason to complete your census now. If you don't get your census forms turned in, either by phone, email or online, a census-taker might show up at your home (after this whole "physical distancing" thing is over, assumedly)—and the last thing you want is somebody knocking at your door, asking if you have a few minutes to answer a bunch of census questions. So answer them today, from the comfort of your home, as a way to feel like you're still being productive during a period of extended uncertainty. When you're done, you can have a dance party. Who else is a little stressed out right now? There are moments, these days, when I feel so...
